TO TEST FULL RENDITION LAW

Fort Worth Grand Jury Investigating Alleged Violations. Other Cities will Probably Follow Suit.

Special to the Eagle.

Fort Worth, Texas, May 4.—The grand jury in District Judge Swayne's court here today began investigating whether the full rendition assessment law is being universally observed and will return indictments in cases where law has not been followed. It is known there have been violations but these may not have been intentional or they may have been due to a misunderstanding of the requirements of the law.

County Assessor Tillery said today that the state will lose $17,000 in intangible values if the full rendition statute is not observed. He believed that the action here is taken with a view of making a test case and that perhaps it will be followed in other cities.

FARMERS' UNLUCKY THIRTEEN.
Played in Bad Luck Throughout in 11 to 5 Game With University.

Austin, Texas, May 4.—Coming with a party of thirteen, the Agricultural and Mechanical college baseball team fell in hard lines and bad luck on the baseball diamond when the meeting with the university occurred, the score being 11 to 5.

After making a round through the capitol yesterday morning and inviting all the state officials and members of the legislature out to see them turn the trick, they went to pieces in the sixth inning and the thing was done.

In the seventh College made a rally, and after two men were out, with the bases full, English hit a safe one for two sacks, way out in deep center. He made third on the throw in to the plate, and when Jones threw to third to head him off, Johnson let the ball go by him and English scored. Hamilton got to first on an error, but was left on base when DeWare flew out to center.

In the seventh all hope for College departed when Varsity added three more runs through a combination of conditions, and in the eighth Varsity got two more.—Houston Post.

Bank Deposits, Union Passenger Stations, Bexar County Court Bill
Tyler Criminal Court Buried.

Special to the Eagle.

Austin, Texas, May 4.—When the house resumed work on the senate bank deposit guaranty bill today, the reading of the measure was insisted on, and this occupied the time till recess. It is expected that the discussion of the bill will consume all the afternoon.

This morning the house engrossed the bill conferring authority on the railroad commission to require the construction and maintenance of union passenger stations.

The bill requiring railroads to maintain properly warm and lighted stations was engrossed to third reading.

The resolution offered yesterday by Terrell of Texas, relative to the establishment of a criminal district court at Tyler to prosecute members of the mob that lynched a negro there Saturday is now buried in the committee on state affairs and it is not expected that it will again see the light of day.

The house committee again discussed the Bexar county court bill this morning, but delayed action.

Senate Works on Appropriation Bill.

The appropriation bill came before the senate this morning. Little effort was made to amend or alter the measure. The bill carries appropriations amounting to eight and a half million dollars, which is a hundred thousand dollars less than the amount of the house bill. It excludes the provision to retire the state bonds, falling due July 1, amounting to over a million dollars. The measure will probably pass this afternoon.

POLICE REMEMBER THIS DATE.

Special to the Eagle.

Chicago, Ill., May 4.—Today is the anniversary of the two most memorable events in the criminal records of Chicago—events that will long live in the memories of Chicago policemen. The great Haymarket riot, in which six policemen were killed and sixty others seriously injured by bombs thrown by anarchists, occurred May 4, 1886. Three years later, on May 4, 1889, the noted murder of Dr. Patrick H. Cronin took place. Deaths of those connected with the trials subsequent to these tragedies have been numerous, most of them unnatural.
